

GENERAL WILLIAMS told HOLLAND, of the Eminence Constitutionalist, the other day, that he was approached by one of GRANT's emissaries last winter, who said to him: "In the new order of things you, General WILLIAMS, will be a Royal Duke." "An honor," quoth the modest Old SORGHUM to the astounded editor, "I respectfully declined." This little story, like nearly everything else that falls from WILLIAMS' lips, is exceedingly apocryphal. Had any such proposition been made him by a genuine "emissary of GRANT," SORGHUM would have swallowed it as eagerly as a hungry trout gulps down a fly, and instead of running over the State yelling, "Look at me! I am the hero of SALTVILLE!" we would hear him shouting at the top of his voice, "Rah for GRANT!" The Know-Nothings of Illinois caught him with a less glittering bait than "His Royal Highness, the Grand Duke of Sorgho."

THE "Managers" of the Public Library Lottery announced, the evening before the drawing, that only thirty-eight per cent. of the tickets were sold, and they were compelled to raise the prizes accordingly. The Courier-Journal, a day or two prior to this, announced that SCOTT GLORE had purchased all the unsold tickets, and would "sell until the turn of the wheel." A friend at Louisville writes us that GLORE's purchase amounted to $18,000. If this be true, how did the "Managers" figure out that thirty-eight per cent? We are not interested in the matter to the amount of a cent, pecuniarily. It is simply a question of arithmetic with us.

THE Courier-Journal is worrying itself needlessly over GRANT's future designs. If it will exercise a little patience, delirium tremens will win its bugaboo for its own before the next Presidential election.

We keep a trained terrier on our table for the benefit of exchange grabbers. And he hangs on to a finger nail lovely.

THE HERALD.

EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING, IN THE TOWN OF HARTFORD, OHIO COUNTY, KENTUCKY.

JOHN P. BARRETT & CO., AT THE PRICE OF $2 Two Dollars a Year in Advance.

Job work of every description done with neatness and dispatch, at city prices. We have a full line of job types, and solicit the patronage of the business community.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1875. JNO. P. BARRETT, LOCAL EDITOR.

A beautiful rainbow, just before sundown, Monday afternoon, spanned the sky.

Miss Julia Townsend, who has been absent for several months, teaching school in Grayson county, returned home last week.

March made its entire Sunday night rearing, plunging, pawing, roaring, belching, shaking its mane, and lashing its tail, like a lion that has just stirred up a yellow-jacket's nest.

"The Guiding Star," edited by that witty and humorous writer, Mrs. M. McIntyre, will be read at the Good Templar's lodge meeting to-morrow night. A rare intellectual treat is in store for the members who attend.

Lecture by Dr. Henderson.
Our distinguished and eloquent Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. H. A. M. Henderson, will deliver a lecture on popular education and kindred topics, at the courthouse to-morrow night. As the Dr. is no stranger to our people, it will require no exhortation to induce our citizens to turn out en masse to hear him on that occasion.

Stockholders' Meeting.
The annual meeting of the Stockholders of the Ohio County Agricultural and Mechanical Society, will be held at the Court House in Hartford, Ky., on March 13th 1875, for the purpose of electing a President and Board of Directors for the ensuing year. JAS. A. THOMAS, Tr. Feb. 18, 1875.

On last Saturday, one week ago, Virgil Morris, living near Centertown precinct, was arrested, for carrying concealed a deadly weapon, and also for perjury. He was taken before W. I. Rowe, J. P. O. C., and on last Thursday he was tried under the charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons, and acquitted. The county attorney saw proper to dismiss the other suit, and the prisoner was set at liberty. He was arrested upon the complaint and information of R. C. Ashby.

We have received the February and March numbers of the Illustrated Household Magazine, published at 41 Park Row, New York, C. D. Findley, editor. It is a marvel of typographical neatness, literary excellence, and cheapness, being mailed to subscribers for only $1 a year. Each number contains forty pages of reading matter that will compare favorably with the contents of any magazine in the country. The number for the current month is the third of the sixteenth volume. Wood's Household Magazine has been incorporated with this publication.

The Trouble Between Mr. and Mrs. Martin Scanlan.

Martin Scanlan is a small farmer, who lives in McLean county, near the Ohio county line, whence he recently removed from Muhlenburg county. Martin is also well advanced in years, is married, and loves his "bitters." Besides, he is a genuine Frenchman from Ireland. Mrs. Scanlan is not half the age of Martin, and is represented to us as being a buxom, fine-looking, frisky young native woman, who is as fond of company as Martin is of his bottle. "She can talk to and entertain a feller," asseverated our informant, "as nice as any gal." It appears that there is a young "feller" in the neighborhood who is particularly fond of being entertained by her—indeed, enjoyed her society so thoroughly, that he spent the larger half of his time at Martin's house. As he paid no board, and his horse was eating up the old man's corn, Martin at last grew tired of feeding him and his animal, and invited him to make his visits shorter and come less frequently. At least he said he was tired of supporting t'other fellow. But his wife accused him of being jealous. Martin denied. Mrs. Martin repeated the accusation, and declared her intention to have the young man come whenever she wanted to see him, and that would be every day, if she felt like it. Martin swore he shouldn't come, and went out to the crib and took counsel of his bottle. She declared he should, and snatched Martin's dutchman from the mantle and smashed it on the hearth. He guzzled and she stormed until bedtime, when they retired, both mad and one drunk. Now, we have no idea that Martin ever heard of Othello, and how that dusky worthy put a quietus on Desdemona, but Mrs. Martin is very certain that when she woke up about the noon of last Friday night, Martin had the pillow on her face and was enacting the smothering scene to perfection. Mrs. Martin, being a woman who won't put up with nonsense, and also stouter than her husband, and duly sober, soon reversed the situation, and the first thing our Milesian Othello knew, he was flat on his back, the deadly pillow across his face, and Mrs. Martin calmly sitting atop of it. And she didn't leave her perch until the old man was almost in sight of "kingdom come." Next morning she bundled up all of her clothing she could conveniently carry, and started off aloof for her former home and people in Muhlenburg, while Martin betook himself to the woods to hunt squirrels. These things quickly reached the ears of the young fellow who had caused all the trouble, who, imagining that he was the particular squirrel Martin was after, "swore his life again him," and it was at the examination of the old man last Monday before a magistrate that the above facts transpired.

Ku-Klux.

Last Thursday night a number of masked men went to the house of Mrs. Casinger, about eight miles north of Hartford, in this county, and called out a young man by the name of Cain, who was living with Mrs. C., and ordered him to leave the county in ten days, and if he failed to do so, they would come back at the expiration of the time, treat him to a dose of hickory sprouts, and give him another ten days in which to leave. If he still refused to depart, they would come back and kill him. Mrs. Casinger is a widow with several children, living alone, having been deserted by her husband, L. N. Casinger, about a year ago. Young Cain was hired by her to work her farm, and was the only man about the place. We can learn of no reason why Mr. Cain should be requested to leave the county.

Obstreperous Darkies.

Thornton Carter and James Oliver Rucker, two of the government's special wards, had an altercation on Tuesday of last week, in which Carter got his head badly mashed up with the soft side of a brickbat. He forthwith went to the police judge and got a writ against Rucker, charging him with intent to kill. After hearing the case on Wednesday last, the court discharged Rucker on the felony warrant, but held him and Carter both over under a charge of a breach of the peace, and set their trial for Friday last, at which time they were tried and fined four dollars each.

A Call.

It appearing that differences of opinion have arisen in this community, in regard to the meaning of the "Articles of Faith," of the Methodist Church South, as laid down in their "Book of Discipline." Will Rev. B. A. Candiff, in a course of lectures, be pleased to give the meaning of the "Twenty-five Articles of Faith," embraced in the "Book of Discipline," of the M. E. Church South.

B. P. BERRYMAN, and others.

Marriage Licenses.

The following is a list of the marriage licenses issued for the week ending February 27, 1875. Theodore N. Truman and Miss Polly A. Crow. John C. Turne and Alivida L. Davenport. William H. Williams and Mrs. Mary E. Tichenor.

Transfers of Real Estate.

The following is a list of the real estate transfers, lodged for record for the week ending February 27, 1875. John A. McCord to John W. Cannon, 80 acres of land on Caney Creek. Consideration, $450 00.

A Successful Revival.

A very interesting protracted meeting has been held at Walton's Creek Baptist church, recently, by Dr. Bennett. He baptized the converts to the number of twenty five, last Sunday.

Jealousy and Pistols.

Crit. Park is one of our citizens, as well as one of the "superior race" that was boasted something higher by the United States Senate last Saturday. Crit. was once a married man—and is yet, though he don't know it—but for reasons best known to himself, divorced himself from his better—may be his worse—half, and has been hoeing a row by himself for some time, if not longer.

Louis Griffin is a gentleman of the same persuasion, only more so, as charcoal will make a white mark on his face. Besides, Louis is an appreciator of the gentler sex, and, possibly, can discover charms invisible to Crit.'s duller optics. At any rate, that which Crit. discarded as base paste Louis picked up and has been wearing in his bosom as a diamond of the first water. In other words, he has been appropriating the "bed and board" deserted by Crit.

And right here steps in the human part of the business. Crit. wouldn't "chaw tobacco" himself, and he don't want any other nigger to "chaw" it. He found no comfort in the hoe-cakes, hugging, snoring, and scolding of Mrs. Crit., and it made him mad to think that any other fellow should find comfort therein. So his eyes turned green, and his tongue grew familiar with profanity, and the honey of his heart was turned to the gall of bitterness. He saw blood on the moon, and his dreams were haunted by coffins and dead niggers, and all the "corpuses" were the features of Louis Griffin. This sort of thing became at last unbearable. Procuring a pistol, he loaded himself with "beezine whisky," and sallied out Monday to punctuate Louis' line of life with a leaden period. Louis heard of the howling death that was on his trail, and prepared himself to meet and repel the "shock of war."

Rumors of the pending and seemingly irrepressible conflict reached the ever open ears of our worthy town marshal, who came down upon the thirsters for each other's blood, "like a wolf on the fold," and yanked them both off to duarance vile. Judge Luce, in consequence of pressure of business that could not well be postponed, set their trial for yesterday, when—important witnesses failing to appear—the case was continued until to-day at one o'clock. Both the belligerents were required to give bond for their prompt appearance. Louis "ponied up" but Crit. failed to find a friend who had sufficient confidence in him to stand his sponsor on a bail-bond, and consequently had to wag himself, together with his grief and wrongs, to the ever-hospitable caravansary of Lum Wize. This case is creating quite a sensation in upper-crust colored society, of which all the parties are conspicuous members.

Parson Humphreys.

A petition was circulated among and universally signed by the citizens of Hartford, last Monday, praying the conference of the M. E. Church, which meets at Louisville on the 17th inst., to return Parson Humphreys to this charge. Mr. Humphreys is a man we can illly spare. He is a man of piety. He is a man of brains. He is not bigoted or narrow-contracted. He believes that Christ died for all men, and not for those of his particular faith. And he preaches a wholesome and liberal doctrine, the sequence of such belief. We should be sorry to lose him, and hope the prayer of the petition will be granted by the conference.

New Millinery Establishment.

We learn that as soon as the spring opens Mrs. Laura Haynes, Miss Emma Houston, and Miss Belle Sullenger, propose to open a millinery store in our town. As these ladies are "home folks," and propose to furnish just as good work as can be obtained in the city, and at as low prices as anybody, we bespeak for them a liberal patronage. They also propose to conduct the dress making and hair-brading business along with the other. Full particulars will be announced in due season by advertisement and circulars.

Local Option.

The petition of about thirty voters of the lower town precinct, (number seven), was filed in the county court last Monday, asking the county judge to order an election to be held in said district, at the May election, under the "Local Option Law." The order was made as desired. The friends of Local Option who desire to test the question in other districts, have no time to lose in getting up and filing their petition, as they will have to be filed on or before the first Monday in April to be in time.

Railroad Election.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Hartford Railroad and Mining Company, held at the courthouse in Hartford on Monday, the first day of March, 1875, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year. James A. Thomas, President; John P. Barrett, Secretary; E. D. Walker, J. P. Johnson, L. Barrett, A. P. Hudson, John P. Tracy, A. B. Baird and John P. Barrett, Directors.

The recent heavy rains, following each other so rapidly, have thrown all the rivers and creeks out of banks. The indications are that we will have higher water than has been known for many years. The county roads are almost impassible.

We are again under obligations to the clever and popular landlady of the Crow House, our good friend Mrs. Vaughn, for another fine luncheon sent up to us last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grey, of Shelbyville, Ky., arrived in our town yesterday evening. Mrs. Grey is a daughter of Dr. John E. Fendleton of this place.

THE PROFITS OF SHEEP RAISING.

An Interesting Letter in Regard to Sheep Husbandry. TAYLORTOWN, OHIO CO. KY. February 23, 1875.

EDITOR HARTFORD HERALD: By your kindness, I would be pleased to give the readers of your excellent paper the result of a friendly visit I paid to my hospitable and generous friend, W. D. Coleman, who is, by the way, one of the most successful dealers in blooded stock we have in Ohio county. For several years past he has been devoting a great deal of attention to the improving of his hogs and sheep, and the result of his labor is a lot of hogs and sheep that it is a delight to look upon. While I was admiring the latter, I casually remarked that it was a very common idea that raising sheep was unprofitable. His reply to this was a request that I make a calculation of the profits he derived in one year on fourteen head of sheep, which I here present, and which may be relied on as strictly correct:

Cash received for wool.....$ 47 85
Cash received for muttons..... 12 09
Cash received for lambs..... 50 00

Whole amount received.....$109 49
Cost of feed and time spent in feeding..... 35 50

Gain in one year.....$ 79 44

From this, it is plain to see that raising sheep does pay, the testimony of many good farmers to the contrary notwithstanding. Just so long as farmers permit their sheep to run in the woods in the fall till they become poor, or let them go unsheltered through the winter, with an occasional feeding or salting, or do not pay the proper attention to crossing the breeds, just so long will sheep raising remain unprofitable. Thanking you for a small space, I remain an earnest reader and admirer of the HERALD.

H. B. T.

OUR ROCKPORT LETTER.

ROCKPORT, KY., Mar. 2. SWEET FLATTERY.

DEAR HERALD:—My first communication proving successful, encourages me to try again.

Your paper is gaining friends here fast, and I hope soon to be able to send you a list of subscribers. It seems hard for the people to believe that a paper printed at Hartford can live at all. They don't ask, "Can anything good come out of Hartford?"—THE HERALD has proved that too incontestably—but seem to fear, as I said, that it won't live long.

EXCEPT ONE MAN.

Your stand upon the subject of Sorghum Democracy meets with the most hearty approval from everybody I have heard speak of it, but one man, and he—Heaven! how can I record it?—will not subscribe for the HERALD, nor vote for any man whose election it advocates. You would naturally suppose this man had been a soldier, battling bravely through the whole war for his beloved Confederacy, perhaps one of Gen. W's aide-de-camp—not so, however. I am credibly informed that the only battle he was ever in was at home, when his wife, armed with woman's universal weapon, the broom-stick, put him to an ignominious flight, and he took refuge under the bed.

A FIRST-CLASS APOLOGY.

Allow me here to apologise to the "Big Judge" for what he seems to consider an affront, in my notice of him in my former communication. Now, Judge, I meant no insult nor affront, I assure you. I had no allusion whatever to your mental bigness, but to your corporeal greatness, and I am sure that your sense of honesty and truth will convince you that there is not so much "ridiculous absurdity" in my assertion, as you might at first have imagined. Some men, you know; Judge, are intellectual giants while mere pigmies in size, and others are the reverse.

ROCK IS ROCKED OUT OF CAMP.

Henry Rock's bomb-shell fell with a terrible shriek and caused great consternation in the ranks of the faithful hereabout. Their wrath is terrible, their curses are not loud but deep. The imprecations they heap upon him are enough to damn a State, let alone poor Henry. I attended one of their meetings, and heard him anathematized and formally read out of the party in the following forcible and fervid language by the chairman: "Feller citizens of the great an glorious national Republikan party—dat man—dat low white man—dat Henry Rock—he's a trator to de country which General Grant dismember an which de saintly Ben Butler fit and died an stole fur, and is now president of de congresshul bobberashun of de nation, (fur which place I is a candydunce provided I kin git votes enuff). After dat white man dun bin treated as offen by de cullud popelashun, as he is, drunk as much corn-jooce at our expense, as he is, an bin shuck by de han by spektable cullud pussens, as he is, and den because de Democrats was de stronges and beat him, gits mad, like he is, an turns agin his friends, like he is, an goes off an jines de enemy, like he is, all dis chile's got to say is, let 'im go. Dampn I keer. Let's go an licker."

"COME UNTO ME."

Now, Mr. Editor, what allow me to ask, is to become of Bro. Rock? He won't go into the Sorghum ranks, and he is far too clever and nice a man to be left to drift about at the mercy of the tide and every strong wind that blows. You must take him in and christen him into full fellowship. Perhaps he will be unable to stand strong meat at first, but a few dishes of Gruel (le) will bring him around all right, and he will make a very respectable Democrat. I am well acquainted with him and can vouch for him after baptism. I would recommend tho', that, when you baptize him, you soak him well. Respectfully, P. R.
